SOUTHERN WHIGS, ETC.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE NEW YORK HERALD. Washington, April 25, 1852. Mr. Dean's speech in the House, on Friday, is causing a good deal of trouble among some of the Presidential aspirants. It is regarded as a manifesto of the democracy of New York, against Gen. Cass. The Union, heretofore supposed to be Cassish, endorses the speech as an admirable edition of Senator Mangum's first speech, and Mr. Stanly's letter to the Republic.

The Southern whigs who retired from the caucus, have had several meetings with regard to drawing up a statement of their position ; but, as yet, without a definite re-engrossing topics, and they absorb all other matters of interest. It is vain to disguise facts, and to face them always is true heroism.

An impression prevails—be it true or not, it is yet the impression—that Mr. Senator Mangum made the speech in the Senate he has made in consequence of the lure of the Vice-Presidency on the Scott ticket; and an impression prevails that a like lure is held out to Mr. Senator Jones, of Tenm., in consequence of which is the division manifested among the Southern whigs in Congress. I must not be censured for writing you of the existence of this impression. I did not create it. It is my bounden duty, as your correspondent, to write you not only facts, but wide-spread rumors affecting public men: and when these rumors are put by me into print, I but confer an obligation in giving them a reason to contradict in public what is everywhere whispering in private. The rumor and the belief among many, therefore, is, that at supper parties and dinner parties a coalition has been formed between Mr. Mangum and ex-Governor Seward on one side, involving others on their respective sides, that with Gen. Scott as the unwriting or unwritten candidate for the North, is to be run Mr. Mangum South, or Mr. Jones, with the distribution of other high offices among their followers in North Carolina and Tennessee, and Kentucky. Hence this satonishing coalition.

Mr. Mangum was selected, rumor adds, to preside over ligh offices among their followers in North Carolina and Tennessee, and Kentucky. Hence this astonishing coalistion.

Mr. Mangum was selected, rumor adds, to preside over the whig Congressional Caucus at a private meeting, where Gov. Seward was the prominent spirit, and it was there determined that the whig Compromise resolution of the first congressional caucus should be ruled out of order. All this may be most untrue, and I endorse not one word of it; but such rumors are as current in the Washington circles as any item of news in circulation. I have before me names of men alleged to have been present at these private dinner and supper caucuses, but it is not my business to invade sociat circles, further than as they produce public measures. The Scott speeches agreed upon in these caucuses to follow Mr. Mangum, from Tennessees and North Carolina, and to back him up, will soon tell what I need not write.

It is agreed, too,—and Mr. Mangum's speech already discloses it—that the whig Compromise resolution of the early Congressional Caucus is to be repudiated, not only for the coming Congressional Caucus, by being ruled out of order, but in the Whig National Convention, repudiated as uncalled for and unnecessary also. Some of the Southern whigs in this new movement insist upon it that the waiving of the issue now is but its adjournment to a more fitting body—the Whig National Convention—and such of themas are in earnest (for some of them are are but dupes, as dupes they should be. The whole Compromise, as a "finality," is to have the go-by, then, in the Convention and such is the supper and dinner caucus understanding among the high contracting parties, and the go by it will have and should have in the present took thems. the go by it will have and should have in the present position of things. Why! I think I hear you ask In astonishment. Why? Hear me, then, and I will tell you why.

We Northern whigs can never fight for Southern constitutional rights on Northern ground, if Southern men abandon us. The provision in the constitution for the surrender of fugitive slaves, is to us a most unpopular, often a most revolting and shocking duity, but it is a duty imposed upon us by the constitution, and as sacred. solemn a part of that instrument as any other section in it. If such leading men as Mangum, Stanly, Jones, of Tennessee, or any portion of Kentucky, ever abandon us when we struggle in the North for the unquestioned, unquestionable rights of the Southern States, we must fall before the unpopularity of the Fugitive Slave provision of the constitution. We cannot stand up for men who refuse to stand up for themselves. We have no earthly interest in protecting the odious parts of the constitution, surendered by the South itself. We will never be the catchers of negroes that North Carolina men or Kentucky men do not want. If we can evade that provision of the constitution by Southern acquiescence, we must assuredly will. Slave catching, next to slave trading, is thought by most people to be the meanest of all occupations. We whigs who, in the North, have sscrifted ourselves, our popularity, our power, to preserve the consecrated instrument a George Washington and a John Adams bequeathed us, are aboved from all obligations to centimue this self secrifice when such men as Messrs. Mangum, Stanly, Jones, and others, acting for their States, acquit us from the contract.

And why should we continue this sacrifice? Answer thou me that, Messrs, Editors, You have given the country, from Western New York, an anti-slavery man for President, whose education, every feeling of whose nature, beyond all doubt, was and is anti-slavery man for President, whose education, every feeling of whose nature, beyond all doubt, was and is anti-slavery man hor

WASHINGTON, April 22, 1852.

Mr. Brocks' singular and offensive course—Whig Caucus—Letter in Express—Scene in House—Messrs. Howard, Simily. Brocks, and Washburn.

The extraordinary course of Mr. Brocks, a member from New York city, both in the whig caucus on Tuesday evening, and in the House of Representatives, last evening, towards the close of a somewhat unusually extended session, is the subject of general remark, and of universal animadversion, on the part of the whig members. I have already referred to his craven and dastardly speech in the whig caucus, a speech that excited the surprise and indignation of Northern members, and the contempt and scorn of every noble-minded Southern whig. These feelings have been not a little heightened by the reception here, yesterday, of the New York Express of Tuesday. dignation of Northern members, and the contempt and scorn of every noble-minded Southern whig. These feelings have been not a little heightened by the reception here, yesterday, of the New York Express of Tuesday, containing a long letter, dated Washington, and signed "An Eye on the Capitol." If not word for word the same in sentiment in its views, language and form of expression, this letter is so nearly identical with Mr. Brocks' speech in the whig cancus, as to leave no doubts in the mind of any one, that the same mind originated both letter and speech. If Mr. Brocks is the author of his own speech, he then is also the author of this letter; if not, then must his speech have been composed for him by the author of this precious epistle. There can be no escaping from one or the other of these conclusions. Mr. Brocks may accept either horn of this dilemma he may choose; he will not find either position very honorable or very comfortable just now.

If his speech in the cancus excited universal disapprobation, to use no harsher term, the reception of the letter in the Express, his subsequent speech in the House, his uncalled for and false charges against the whig members, especially against the more liberal and honorable portion of the Southern whigs, and, above all, his open betrayal of the confidential proceedings of the cancus, have combined to deepen this feeling into the strongest indignation and disgust, at his mingled treachery, the falsehood of his charges, and the baseness of his attacks upon whig members of Congress.

Whoever may be the writer of the letters in the Express, signed 'An Eye on the Capitol,' a more mendacious letter-writer than he has been never sent out his effusions

ges, and the baseness of his attacks upon whig members of Congress.

Whoever may be the writer of the letters in the Express, signed 'An Eye on the Capitol,''a more mendacious letter-writer than he has been, never sent out his effusions from this city. His letters have ever been a complete tissue of perversions of facts, misrepresentations of views and expressions, or, as was the case in the extract quoted by Mr. Stanly, in his first letter, full of unqualified falsehoods; the letter received yesterday contains a long string of studied attacks upon Mr. Stanly and upon Senators Joues and Mangum. The latter for his late independent and fearless vindication of General Scott, is threatened with political annihilation, and maligned as having been bought up by a promise of the Vice Presidency, as well as having formed a dinner party coalition with Mr. Seward, and other Northern fanatics and anitators. Senator Jones is charged with having been influenced by similar appeals to his ambition; and all three, with all who act with them from the South, are denounced with much bitterness, and more verbiage, as traitors to their own constituents. This writer, all the while, claims to be a much truer friend to the South than these gentlemen, yet at the same time professes to be a Northern man.' Can you imagine more despicable toadyism than this letter; or, eximing from a while, a baser piece of treachery to the while party? What an abundant source of text-words and extracts, for comments, and sources of attacks upon the best and soundent whiles in the nation, the publication of such a letter in a while newspaper affords to Southern loce fece presses! Yell it is furnithed by a pretended while if not as is universally believed, by a while member of Coegress from the Empire City?

It is true that, in the House yesterday, Mr. Brooks, in the most solenn manner, called Heaven to witness that he did not write the letter in question; yet, after a rigid cross-examination, he was at last driven to confess that he had seen it before it w the motives of the whigs who in the House voted against the resolution declaring the finality of the compromises, to betray the proceedings of a confidential whig caucus, and to slander, with false charges of intentions not entertained, the whigs present at that caucus. A good deal of it singularly enough was but a repetition of the letter in the Express, the paternity of which Mr. Brooks soon after denied. Look for instance, at these brief extracts and their similarity:

"If the Southern whiteredinest even stager, or begin to stager, sorte qui prut, (save bimself who can) be the cry."

"Our hearts wavered because the Southern white occurs in the stager, sorte qui prut, (save bimself who can) be the cry."

Mr. Stanly replied and completely exposed the falsity of Mr. Brooks' charges against the Southern whigs, and added the following plain explanation of the cause of Mr. Brief and the securate think that he is to be sacrificed—bound and taken to the alear—that he is to be sacrificed because we do not follow his distation, and regulate our conduct according to his manifesters and his lead; that the Compromise measures are all lost, unless all Southern whigh implicitly obey his manifacture."

Mr. Banly then referred to the letter in the Express, already mentioned, and laid the responsibility of it with Mr. B., as the arguments and the very expressions, serving verte, were the same he had used in the caucus the night before. Mr. Brooks declared—before high heaven, that he wrote not one word of the letter." His confession of having looked over it, and having crased passages unfriendly to Mr. Stanly, I have already stated. Mr. Stanly well retorted upon him, that how little real kindness there had been in these crasures would appear by reading what is left.

Our Hawailan Correspondence.

HonoLulu, Feb. 18, 1862. Important from the Sandwich Llands—A Republic in the Pacific Ocean-Anneaation of the Sandwich Islands to the United States.

The day star of republicanism which rose in Califor now throws its light across the blue waters of the Pacific, kindling the hopes and exciting the anticipations of all who believe in the great political mission of the United States and her democratic sons.

The schooner Excel arrived at this port on the 10th inst., in twenty-five days from Raiatea, one of the Seciety Islands, bringing the intelligence that the natives had thrown off the yoke of Queen Pomare, and esta-blished a republic. By private advices I learn that seveand that some extraordinary changes are looked for in the other islands of the group. Affairs look squally inand that some extraordinary changes are looked for in the other islands of the group. Affairs look squally indeed throughout the whole Pacific for the long continuance of monarchy, and particularly here in the deminions of his august Majesty King Kamohama III. The Sandwich Islands will follow the example of Ralates in the course of a year or more, and then nothing can stop the progress of the republican sentiment.

The Sandwich Islands, since the famous expedition of Captain took, have attracted the attention of the civilized world, as a field for commercial enterprise, and the propagation of the Christian faith among a semi-barbarous people. But the acquirition of California by the United States, the great emigration of American citisens to the Pacific coast, and the consequent spread of demeratic epinions, the rapid production of gold the probable establishment of several lines of steamships between San Francisco and China, all of which must stop at Honolulu, reader these islands of far greater importance than at any former period; and a "manifest destiny seems to have decided that the sceptre of sovereignty of these ceans gems shall pass from the bands of a weak and imbeelle monarch and officials, into those of an enlightened people, willing to employ the rich gifts which all bounting instruct has so profusely extetered here, for the benefit of the world. That the days of the present dynasty are numbered is not be doubted for a moment by any one at all conversant with the condition of affairs in this quarter, and with the wonderful progress of republican ideas among the native population. King Kamehama III. is very friendly to Americans, and has been frequently heard to express his desire to resign the crown, and ruther from the annoyances of public life, but unfortunately he is a mere pupped in the hands of his ministers, and though heartily digusted with everything connected with his office, is wanting in moral courage to the King, too, if I am not instaken, before the Islands will be a republic, and with that the discontented condition of the people renders a charge inevitable.

The islands will support a population of several mislions, and their climate and geographical position are of the first rank and importance. The industry, enterprise, and refinement of the Anglo-Saxon race, are alone wanted to render them the garden of the world as they now are of the Pacific. A large emigration from California is locked for shortly, and you need not be surprised to hear, in a few months, that the republic of the Sandwich Islands is a "fixed fact."

Annexed is an extract of a letter, dated Buenos Ayros, The Church—washingoron's birth day—urquit—Za's Toast to his memory.

Annexed is an extract of a letter, dated Buenos Ayres, Feb. 23:—

Since the date of my last, we have had a succession of helidsys. On Thursday, 18th Urquiza, at the head of 25 000 men, made his grand entry into the city. The cavalry, 13,000, made a beautiful appearance; and the whole force, including infantry and artillery, were fine looking troops, all young men, well dressed and armed; it did not need one half of them to have upset Rosea. The old man must have been very much deceived as to the character of the force to be brought against him. For myself, I was agreeably disappointed in their appearance; they were four and a half hours passing our position, the cavalry eight abreat and the infantry ten or insite. On Saturday a large party of us, including our better balves, went out to Rosas' old camping ground, and from thence to the battle field. For the whole distance, the ground is covered with knapsacks, eartridge boxes, caps, &c. &c. and now and then dead bodies, left as they were shot or Isinced. We went up to the top of the house where Rosas stood to view the progress of the fight and give his orders. After his line trofic he came down and mounted a horse and gave leg bail, leaving the rest to take care of themselves as best they might. The house is pretty well peppered with balls; for not long after Rosas quit, it was aurreunded by a company of Germans, and every one in the house was killed—wenty one bodies were found on the stairs. We passed over a considerable part of the lattic ground, and it appeared pretty conclusive there was not much very hard fighting. On the plain in front of the house, remain now about thirty carcases, nearly dried up—in a dilch near by, perhaps some fifty—a lengue farther on than the house, we were told there were nore. In the whole, there could not have been over 400 to 500 killed—a small number considering the forces engaged. A large portion of these were despatched in the refreat. Yesterday they had a g
